

DANIEL MONTE

OFFICIAL BIO

Daniel Monte, emerging from Toronto's vibrant music scene, is a dynamic artist, songwriter, and violinist who thrives in the chaos of his eclectic alternative pop genre (Hozier, Cage the Elephant, Imagine Dragons).

"Get Some Love" is the 2025 summer pop song in Monte's discography that dives headfirst into the allure of forbidden desire. As Monte says, "Everyone faces temptation. It's a part of being alive so why not celebrate that shared experience?" Drawing on tastes like Dua Lipa's dancing flair and Hozier's emotive weight, "Get Some Love" is an intoxicating mix of darkness and groove that makes you want to move. The production is polished yet edgy, the mood is sultry, and the message cuts deep. For listeners who crave pop that's just a little dangerous, "Get Some Love" hits that sweet spot.

Through his music, he explores the complexities of culture, love, sin, and life, using symphonic elements and raw pop-rock energy to weave stories that resonate deeply with his listeners. His performances are immersive, not just concerts but shared moments between himself, his band and the audience. He's been fortunate enough to play festivals and venues internationally (Lilla By Festivalen, Sweden, 2025). Whether through his voice, piano, or violin, Daniel creates an atmosphere of connection, where each show feels like a celebration of life's most profound emotions. With each new piece, he invites his audience into a world where music brings us closer to understanding what it means to be human.

LISTING BIO

Daniel Monte is a Toronto-based eclectic alternative pop artist who thrives in energy-driven chaos.